Photo Courtesy: The Good Brigade/Getty Images Whether you're traveling via an airplane, automobile, or sea vessel, having Wi-Fi on the go is advantageous in many ways. It means you stay connected with the rest of the world while on the move! Wi-Fi access has proved to be more of a necessity for many people around the globe. While some people rely upon it for entertainment, others depend on it for work. Now new car models feature built-in Wi-Fi for flexible access to the internet. In a single word, yes. A car connected to Wi-Fi is more convenient than you can imagine. Scenarios that may need you to get connected to Wi-Fi include; seeking help in case of an emergency, seeking real-time traffic updates, using a navigator, or connecting with friends over the internet. Today, getting your car connected to Wi-Fi has become simpler and more affordable, with plenty of choices to pick from. However, while many people might prefer turning their smartphones into a sharable mobile hotspot, this option might not be reliable, unlike getting a dedicated device for providing internet access. Regardless of the method, you may choose for wireless internet in your car, the service will come at a cost. How to Get Wi-Fi in Your Car Photo Courtesy: Jon Feingersh Photography Inc/Getty Images There are several ways you could get Wi-Fi in your vehicle at an economical price. 1. Turn Your Smartphone Into a Mobile Hotspot The easiest way to get connected while on the go in your car would be to turn your smartphone into a portable hotspot. As the most efficient way to connect to the internet when driving, you could turn on the option through your settings. The process is different according to whichever device you are using. Confirm with the user manual of your specific phone to be sure of the process. However, for most, if not all smartphones, you can locate the option from your smartphone's network settings. Furthermore, turning your on a mobile hotspot can drain the battery much faster. Consider having a charger beside you. 2. Get a dedicated mobile device hotspot These devices will work similarly to a smartphone when creating the mobile hotspot, but that's where their similarities end. Dedicated mobile hotspot devices can only connect you to the internet and cannot be used to do anything else that a smartphone can do. You can use these devices anywhere with network coverage, including areas outside your car. In addition, you can get a dedicated self-catering hotspot or buy a dongle (small computer hardware that is connected to another door for additional functionality) to do the job! 3. Connect using an OBD-II device Although OBD-II is less portable compared to a dedicated hotspot device or smartphone, the equipment offers more functionality than the other two in terms of connectivity. The OBD-II connects directly to the OBD-II port, a place where automobile technicians perform computer diagnostic tasks. The significant advantage of choosing an OBD-II device over any other option for Wi-Fi connectivity in the car is that the device can connect directly with your smartphone through an application. This helps to present real-time information about car location. Interestingly, you can also see where the car was in the past! Cars manufactured after 1996 come with OBD-II ports, making them a viable option for people with older cars. How does Wi-Fi work from the car? Photo Courtesy: Basiclines / Getty Images Generally speaking, Wi-Fi built in the car is not part of your mobile internet plan or at home. It's not even an extension of the two plans. The Wi-Fi of the car comes along with your car system, which means you can connect to the internet without having to turn your smartphone into a hotspot, buy a separate hotspot, or use an OBD-II device. The car entertainment system will act similar to a router and bring an internet connection the cabin. Automobile manufacturers like Toyota partnered with various service providers, such as AT&T and Sprint, to make this possible. You can only access the feature by buying a subscription through your car manufacturer the same way you pay for your home Internet. You can enable the feature for most vehicles by browsing to the onboard touch screen monitor settings. Alternatively, there should be a button in your car dashboard that connects the feature. In addition, you must purchase a data plan through your respective car manufacturer or service provider to use the feature to connect to the Internet. How much does the Wi-Fi car cost? Photo Provided: Boonchai Wedmakawand/Getty Images As stated earlier in this article, the Wi-Fi car is not an extended plan of your usual domestic data plan. You will pay directly to the car manufacturer or a service provider as per the subscription agreement between you and the company. The price is different, depending on the amount of data you like and who your service provider is. A typical Wi-Fi plan will cost about $20 to $40 a month, but this will vary with the plan and supplier. Check with your specific manufacturer to confirm the actual subscription value. Which suppliers offer Wi-Fi service for cars? Photo Provided: Yulia-Images/Getty Images Mobile providers like T-Mobile, AT&T and Verizon provide plans for Wi-Fi vehicles. However, not all car manufacturers offer Wi-Fi services by car in their cars. Only a selected number of vehicles comes with this option. Chrysler was the first manufacturer to build cars with a Wi-Fi-enabled device. Other manufacturers, such as General Motors (GM), followed the example of their new vehicles. Again, see your car manufacturer to determine which service provider has made a deal with them in providing Wi-Fi services in your car. Some cars are built-in wi-fi? QUOTE CREDITED: ROBERT REPKER/GETTY IMAGES YES! Some It comes with an integrated Wi-Fi device that does not need a separate device to connect with the internet. Cars like Chevrolet Cruze, Chrysler 200, Audi A3, and many more a wi-fi device integrated with a stronger signal than the traditional hotspot feature in our smartphones.
